

NEERC

Summary of October 30, 2007 Meeting

The NEERC Fall Meeting featured a fascinating and enlightening presentation by Michael O'Hara, Director, Compensation, Harvard University. His statistical analysis and insight into how Harvard University impacts the local economy was very educational. Michael's talk portrayed Harvard as a major generator of jobs, a developer of intellectual capital, a center of research and innovation, a buyer of goods & services, a community partner, and an excellent recruiter of Compensation Directors.

Happy Holidays to all of you and we look forward to seeing everyone at our next meeting in February 2008!

Best regards,

Stan Straube
